Globalizing Memory: The Afterlives of War

Description
How do individual and collective memories shape war’s cultural and sociopolitical afterlives? A “memory boom” coalesced in the 1980s-1990s: a transnational rise in memory work exploring the events of 20th century atrocities and recording the stories of its sufferers. Many collective efforts centered on memorializing World War II—particularly, the Holocaust and the atomic bombings. Memory work shifts these two realities from their immediate contexts to fuel imaginaries of peace, human rights, and nuclear nonproliferation held mostly in common by international public norms and policies. Through cultural production, these events have come to bear expectations and burdens as symbols of universal inhumanities that successive generations are exhorted to never forget and never repeat. While these histories and memories still remain touchstones, “memory fatigue” has also emerged, as anxiety about social amnesia regarding the past has declined for some.

To assess what memory (and forgetting) at different collective and individual scales does to and for World War II’s afterlives, this tutorial will constellate a selection of novels, a graphic novel, narrative nonfiction, essays, and a film. Focusing on works speaking to the Holocaust and the atomic bombings, and readings from psychoanalysis, memory studies, and cultural studies, we aim to identify a range of theoretical frames, literary genres, and artistic forms for interpreting how collective remembrance of trauma is constructed or fragmented. How does memory form through literature and culture both intimately connected to and decoupled from nation-states? What types of narratives develop and spread? Is global collective memory even possible? How do different media question how memory operates and how history is conveyed?

Recommended Texts
The Craft of Research, Booth, Colomb, Williams
General Goals
To introduce the discipline and practice of English literary studies at an upper-division level, & to write 20-25pp research paper in preparation for an honors thesis. You will be able to:
- Design a research question
- Develop a critical bibliography around that question, including diverse methods and viewpoints
- Put secondary criticism in conversation with a your own ideas and with other criticism
- Write with greater clarity and precision

Course-Specific Goals
To reflect critically on the multifaceted relationships between narrative and memory. You will be able to:
- Describe and use an array of approaches and methods central to memory and trauma studies with regard to the history of World War II and the cultural production referencing these events
- Understand and critique literary theories drawing from psychoanalysis, historicism, and cultural studies
- Generate your own ideas about broad questions of literary form, representation, and ethics

Assignments
- Thoughtful participation (10%): Students will be responsible for introducing (5-7 min. short presentation) and guiding discussion each week (starting Week 2). Attendance at departmental General Meetings is required.
- Short paper (10%): Due Week 4, 5-7pp close reading of a primary text (followed by a conference with the tutor).
- Prospectus and annotated bibliography (10%): Due Week 6, 2pp prospectus, 8-10 sources.
- Short assignments (10%): To help you think about your essay at a steady pace throughout the semester. Includes topics of interest list for library session, glossary and summary exercises, Department Writing Fellow meeting, presentation, draft revision workshop, potential Harvard Art Museum visit. Details TBD.
- Full draft (20%): Due Week 11 to course site and hard copy.
- Final paper (40%): 20-25pp, on a major literary work not read in this class, due (Week 14). Submit to tutor and department by 5pm. If you do not turn in a final paper, you will not pass the tutorial.

Policies

Personal Electronic Devices: Not allowed in class, unless you need something for a presentation or otherwise have obtained permission in advance.

Academic Integrity: Familiarize yourself with Harvard FAS’s Honor Code. If you have questions about anything related to citations, plagiarism, etc. or aren’t sure, please ask. Check out the Harvard Guide to Using Sources and Literary Research at Harvard.

Collaboration Policy: You are encouraged to talk with other students about the course and its readings, and to read each other’s work. In individual assignments, academic collaboration and external sources should be always cited.

Attendance: Your tutorial attendance is vital to your own success as well as to the success of the class as a whole – so is attendance of Junior Tutorial General Meetings and other required events. I will allow each student a “free” tutorial absence to be used in case of sickness, travel, etc.: no explanation necessary. Missing more than one class will decrease your participation grade; excessive absence could result in failing the course. Also, being late really disrupts the work we’re doing together: 2 lates = 1 absence. If you have attenuating circumstances, communicate with me in a timely manner so that we can discuss how to deal with it.

Deadlines and Extensions: Unless otherwise specified, assignments are due by 11:59pm on the date listed in the schedule. Late assignments will be docked 1/3 letter grade per day late, except for the final paper, which must be turned in by the due date. Students failing to turn in a final paper, or turning it in late without an official excuse, will fail the tutorial. If, well in advance of an assignment, you expect you will need an extension, please talk with me.

Email: The course email list and Canvas site will be used to distribute important info throughout the semester—from distributing handouts to adjusting assignments and deadlines. I'll usually respond to emails within 24 hours, but mark time-sensitive or urgent emails in the subject.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: “Students needing academic adjustments or accommodations because of a documented disability must present their Faculty Letter from the Accessible Education Office (AEO) and speak with the professor by the end of the second week of the term. Failure to do so may result in the Course Head’s inability to respond in a timely manner. All discussions will remain confidential, although Faculty are invited to contact AEO to discuss appropriate implementation.”
